

Abstract Of The Disclosure

An optical gas sensor for determining a gas in a gas mixture, especially for determining a gas component in the air, is described, having a radiation source and having a sensitive layer positioned on a substrate. The sensitive layer of the sensor is porous and contains particles, which are optically transparent to a radiation emitted by radiation source and which lengthen the optical path of the radiation.

5

09687180 "062201